Weather

Fair through tomorrow in the valley but with patchy low clouds tonight. High today at Livermore 85. Westerly winds 10 to 20 mph afternoons.

Firecrackers may have started it

Firecrackers may have started the blaze that destroyed an old barn at 4444 Foothill Rd., yesterday, and charred nearby grass. Seven Pleasanton and 10 California Division of Forestry firemen responded to the 10:45 a.m. fire with five engine companies and ancillary equipment. The unoccupied barn was englulfed in flame when firemen arrived and gutted completely before the blaze was brought under control. No injuries were reported. An investigation is continuing. Fair attendance on record pace

The Alameda County Fair has already broken all records for daily attendance, track attendance and pari-mutuel handle and is heading for new standards in all three barometers.

General admissions in the first nine days of the 1975 Fair have totaled 264,675, or 11.7 per cent more people than in the same period of 1974. Grandstand turnstiles have registered 74,144 people against 70,079 a year ago...an increase of 5.8 per cent.

The amount of money wagered at the track, through Monday, amounted to $6,846,253, or 8.9 per cent more than the equivalent figure in 1974 ($6,231,850).

All-time daily attendance and pari-mutuel betting figures were established over the weekend.

A total of 65,664 persons poured through the gates on Friday, July 4, 5,001 more than the previous high on July 4, 1974.

The race track bulged with 18,491 persons the same day and followed with the second-greatest attendance ever on July 5, 17,131. Previous race track attendance record was 17,019 on July 4, 1974.

The pari-mutuel handle record was erased on July 4 and then blotted out again the next day when $1,384,767 was wagered. This unofficially is the first back-to-back $1 million handles in Fair history.

The daily gate and track crowd counts since last Thursday are as follows: Thursday, 23,515 and 8,411; Friday, 65,644 and 18,491; Saturday, 47,470 and 17,131; Sunday, 28,975; Monday, 22,877 and 7,427.

The 1974 gate and track crowd totals were 382,291 and 112,125, respectively.

City approves 9% salary hike

PLEASANTON — The city council unanimously approved a two-year contract with the Pleasanton City Employees Association Tuesday, which calls for a 9 percent salary increase the first year and a maximum 7 percent hike the second year.

When medical and dental benefits are included in that package, it comes to nearly 10 percent the first year and 7.24 percent the second year, or almost 18 percent over the two years.

The two-year package, which was approved Monday by the PCEA membership, will be retroactive to July 1.

The council extended the negotiating deadline (June 30) one week to encourage an amicable settlement.

The council also approved salary increases for 31 management level and confidential employees, which range from 8 percent to slightly more than 10 percent.

City Manager Bill Edgar's salary increase amounts to 8.1 percent, to $31,200 a year, while City Attorney Ken Scheidig was granted a 9.4 percent hike, to $27,300 annually.

The PCEA package calls for a 9 percent increase this year plus an increase of $5 a month for a medical plan, the installation of $15 a month for a dental plan and a $25 a month payment for sewage plant employees working the 3 p.m. to 1 a.m shift.

Effective July 1, 1976, the employees will receive an increase of between 5 and 7 percent based on a sliding cost of living index plus an additional $5 increase in the medical plan benefit.

Water study hits Valley growth

The portrait of growth in the Valley could begin to change at the joint Army Corps of Engineers — Zone 7 meeting Wednesday night at Livermore's Rincon Avenue School.

The controversial study, which the Corps announced earlier this year to astonished Valley agencies, will concentrate on water supplies and waste water management for the entire Alameda Creek watershed area.

While some critics see the study as "opening the door" for Harlan Geldermann's proposed New Town north of Livermore, others see it as yet another voluminous study reduplicative of efforts to put a ceiling on urbanization of the area.

Wednesday's meeting will attempt to bring together "anyone interested in water resources management in the Livermore, Amador and San Ramon Valleys," according to the Corps' announcement.

Local agencies were taken back when the Corps told them earlier this year that Congress ordered them "to initiate a study of urban water resources" in the watershed area.

Both the City of Livermore and Valley Community Services District opposed the study, each claiming the work would be a wasteful, duplicate expense.

Zone 7 of the Alameda County Flood Control and Water Conservation District met the Army with mixed reaction, but eventually passed a resolution asking county supervisors to designate them as the "coordinating agency" for the study.

To a rousing round of "Hear! Hear!" from fellow directors, Zone 7's George Lydiksen at an earlier meeting directed staff to put "muscle" into its efforts to act in concert with the Corps.

Correspondence from the Zone to the Corps "asked" the Army what it planned to study, but Lydiksen ordered the rewording saying "we want an active — and underline active — part in this study."

"Citizen involvement is essential to this study," Col. H. A. Flertzheim replied in announcing the meeting.

"We need citizen input to identify and define local problems and to set community goals, values and guidelines."

The Corps quickly pointed out that it is empowered to build any facilities requested, but not to buy either land or rights of way necessary. Local agencies would have to fund purchases, they said, noting the state makes reimbursement up to 80-percent.

The local agencies' ability simply to refuse to outlay capital for purchases will preclude the Corps enforcing any of their recommendations.

The "growth versus no-growth" debate will gather momentum as each community voices its fears that the study will either preclude growth, or open the door to unwanted expansion.

Results of the study will have considerable impact on the "downstream" communities of Fremont, Union City and even San Jose, since waste water from the Valley drains into the Alameda Cleek and eventually is used in southern Alameda and northern Santa Clara Counties.

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board currently places strict limits on mineral discharges into the creek and sets stiff penalties for violation.

The Corps argues that "alternatives developed (from the study) will meet area needs assuming conditions ranging from no growth to a 100-percent increase in population by the year 2000."

Dublin success story

Murray was tiny in fifties

The rapid growth of Dublin over the past 15 years has produced an equal rise in demand for schools.

The Murray Elementary School District, which had 44 students, two teachers (at a salary of $33,550 per year), a net capital worth of $46,500 and a yearly income under $15,000 in the mid-1950's, responded to that demand.

Unfortunately, that rapid growth depleted the district's financial resources and before MESD could bounce back to fiscal solidity, the notorious Senate Bill 90 was passed. That bill altered the method of financing school systems and left MESD in a bind from which it has yet to escape.

But in the 1950's, such concerns were unimportant. Change was in the air and the possibility of Dublin becoming more than just a backwater was first mentioned at a board meeting in December of 1957.

There were 42 students in the school that year.

Now there are 5,638.

The change, though orderly was not without drama. The first step was a $750,000 bond issue (plus $3 million from the state) and the 64 voters in the district — 64 voters — approved it overwhelmingly.

That fall, registration skyrocketed to 120 and the hiring of six new teachers was ordered. Construction of Dublin School was underway, beginning work on buildings that is still going on today. The final addition to the district — an intermediate school in the Silvergate area — is scheduled for completion by the fall of 1976.

The budget for the 1962-63 school year reflected continual growth. From the meager $14,746 of 1953 and the moderate $29,650 of 1958, the district budget zoomed to $323,445 in 1962 and included 33 teachers.

Instead of 36 students(1953), the Murray district had to deal with 1,055 in 1962, and a tax increase election was deemed necessary in May of 1963.

Despite the jump in students, only 352 voters turned out to approve a near doubling of the tax rate, but it was vital to keep building the schools.

Fallon School was completed in 1964, the present Murray School was ready in 1965, followed by Nielsen, Fredericksen, Cronin, Lydiksen, Donlon and Wells. The district will total 10 schools when the Dolan site is completed.

Unfortunately for the district's budget, which topped $1 million for the first time in 1965 and reached $2 million in 1971, SB 90 was passed and the district' search for financial stability was frustrated.

School districts traditionally suffered financially during times of growth and building. New teachers, new equipment and growing enrollments cost money, and monetary stability is not achieved until all the building is done. Then a district can use revenue to improve programs rather than supply new buildings.

However, with SB 90 all that is changed. A district is tied to the amount of money it drew in the early '70's, and though inflationary increases are allowed, they are well behind actual inflation.

So MESD had been forced to continue expanding through a period of fixed income until it reached a peak of 5,907 students in the 1972-73 school year. However, since then enrollment has dropped slightly and so has the money from SB 90, since those allocations are based on the number of students in the district.

Although the final school has yet to be completed, the district has not overbuilt. When the Dolan site school is complete, MESD will be able to service the students it has with ease in terms of space. Unfortunately, galloping inflation and a low starting income (thanks to SB 90) have penalized MESD sharply in the past few years.

The citizens of Dublin and Pleasanton responded to the crisis by approving a tax rate increase this past March that will ease MESD's difficulties for the next couple of years, but beyond that the future is cloudy.

After 15 years of growing pains, the district, though it has served the students well through times of massive growth, is still not out of the woods financially.

Hopeful day for Conaway triplets

LIVERMORE - July 9 is usually a big day in the Conaway family, because half of them celebrate their birthdays.

Triplets Jon, Jean and Valerie will be 9 today — completely overshadowing their sister, Carrie, 11, and parents Susan and Jon Conaway , with their triple celebration.

But today's birthday will be a subdued one. Little Jon lies in a deep coma in Children's Hospital, Stanford. It was a month ago today that Jon was discovered unconscious in May Nissen Pool during an outing of Cub Scout Pack 923.

There's a bit of guarded hope now for the spunky scout, who barely clung to life for the first week after the accident and is now to the point where he grinned once — when tickled by his mother — and said "Mom" twice. He also responds to pain and to threats of pain, and seems to know by his serene attitude when family members are with him.

Little improvements come frequently. "He looks so normal," says his father in disbelief. "He'll look at you but never quite focus. You can't help thinking he's about to snap out of it."

Jon no longer needs life-saving machines, as he did the first week after the accident. But he has no control over his muscles and needs to be lifted into a wheelchair .

The doctors at Children's Hospital aren't trying to predict how much Jon will improve. "He could recover 100 per cent," said his father. "Or never make it. Or anything in between."

Jon's type of accident, where he apparently passed out and didn't take any breaths under water, is considered suffocation. Some doctors have told the Conaways there's no hope a patient will snap out of a suffocation-induced coma after 48 hours. But a neurologist who examined the boy was impressed with his progress and offered a lot of hope.

Therapists as well as Jon's parents go through a set of exercises with the boy to make sure his muscles and vital organs don't deteriorate through lack of movement.

Nobody knows how long Jon was under water before he was noticed and pulled out of the pool. It takes 15 minutes for a person to die of suffocation but considerbly less time for massive brain damage to occur. However, in some cases the brain damage is reversible and Jon's parents are hoping that will be the case with their son.

He may have been trying to hold his breath under water when he passed out.

Jon was rushed to Valley Memorial Hospital, and doctors who have cared for him since have praised the Livermore emergency-room staff for their lifesaving job. The boy's heart was started with electric stimulation after it failed to respnd to adrenalin. A medical team from Stanford Medical Center kept him alive in the agonizing hour-long ride to the peninsula, where specialized services were available.

Jon was in the medical center's intensive care unit for two weeks, then moved to the medical floor and finally transferred to Children's Hospital, the same institution where Jimmy Bakker, another Livermore boy who suffered massive damage when a cafeteria table fell on him a year and a half ago, responded to the expert care and now is virtually his old self again.

The Conaways are hoping the same almost miraculous recovery will come to their child. Meanwhile, Mrs. Conaway makes the hour-long trip to Stanford every morning, returning in the evening.

The girls have accompanied her twice and Jon Sr., a car salesman for Don Plummer Chevrolet-Buick, also treks over most evenings after work.

Members of Pack 923 and members of the Jaycees, of which Conaway is a member, have tried to help the family with moral support. They are also trying to make a dent in the $1,000-a-day medical expenses that have been piling up. Although insurance and the Crippled Children's Fund will cover some of the expense, there will be plenty left over for the family of six to shoulder.

Local residents may help by sending a check to the Jon Conaway Fund, in care of the Bank of America, 2125 Second St., Livermore.

They may also want to donate to (or patronize) a big garage sale Pack 923 will be holding at the Pruitt residence, 1371 Hillview (off Rincon Avenue.) The sale, featuring lots of games, clothes, toys, household items and even a stove, will take place 9:30 a.m. to 7:30 p.m. this Saturday and Sunday.

Twice-a-week trash pickup starting

LIVERMORE - Garbage cans will rattle twice as often here as the Livermore-Dublin Disposal Service begins its summer schedule of two pick-ups a week.

The twice-a-week service began Monday and will continue through Sept 27. It is effective in Livermore only.

Customers who usually have their garbage removed on Mondays will also receive summer service on Thursdays; those with regular service on Tuesdays will have a second pick-up on Fridays; Wednesdays, Saturdays; Thursdays, Mondays, and Fridays, Tuesdays.

The disposal service also has notified both its Livermore and Dublin customers that dogs must be kept indoors or penned up at the time of pick-up. Customers have the option of placing their containers outside a gate.

Zone chief to consider goft permit

Alameda County Bureau

HAYWARD— James S. Buranis will request permission from the Alameda County Zoning Administrator Wednesday to continue operation of a golf driving range and miniature golf course at 1364 Arroyo Rd. in the Livermore area.

The property is located in a single family, limited agriculture, 20-acre minimum building site zone.

Gandolfo and Richard Caratti will be seeking a variance to retain a non-conforming dwelling in a business district and to expand and remodel an existing commercial building at 1840 and 1842 Portola Ave. in the Livermore area.

Others seeking variances to reduce required setbacks are Dr. Gerald Lamberti at 16 Greens Lane in Castlewood; and Robert E. Wagenhoffer at 11713 Sierra Ct. in Dublin.

The zoning administrator hearing begins at 1:30 p.m. today in the Alameda County Public Works Building, 399 Elmhurst St.

ABAG may avoid New Town issue

BERKELEY - Unless a specific request is made, the Association of Bay Area Governments probably will not reconsider the controversial Las Positas New Town issue.

An ABAG spokesman said there will be no July ABAG Executive Board meeting and no request has yet been made to place New Town on the Aug. 21 agenda.

In April, the ABAG Executive Board took the position that Harlan Geldermann's proposed new community of 40,000 in the Las Positas Valley would be a premature development and would create further environmental problems in an area already plagued by serious air and water quality woes.

Fred Cooper, chairman of the Alameda County Board of Supervisors, which has approved a General Plan Amendment and specific development plan for New Town, threatened to pull the county out of ABAG, following the regional agency's April action.

Last week, he unsucessfully attempted to convince the Alameda County Mayors' Conference to instruct its delegates to ABAG to support the proposed development if and when ABAG reconsiders its position.

A motion to that effect died for lack of a second at the mayors' conference gathering and the mayors debated only 30 minutes before unanimously voting to table further consideration of the controversial issue.

Pleasanton swim hub offers new openings

There are a limited number of openings in the tots, beginners, advanced beginners, swimmers and advanced swimmers sections of the RedCross Learn-to-Swim program.

Session III, which begins July 14, offers classes in both the morning and the evening at the Pleasanton Aquatic Center, including a Slim and Trim water exercise course.

The tot program is for children under 4 (with an accompanying adult) while the other classes require completion of the previous class.

The advanced swimming class is offered to those who have completed the swimmers class and also have a lifesaving certificate. It is recommended to those wishing to become a water safety aide or instructor.

Further information is availabld at 846-1720.

Valley nuclear role seen in energy plan

Robert Thorne of the Energy Research and Development Agency (ERDA) fielded questions in San Francisco Tuesday from an assemblage of media representatives on ERDA's National Plan for Energy Research, Development and Demonstration.

That report was released last week and ERDA wanted to give the media time to digest Volume One, which is entitled Creating Energy Choices for the Future, before holding a press conference.

The plan focuses on five national policy goals:

- To maintain the security and policy independence of the nation;
- To maintain a strong and healthy economy;
- To provide for future needs so that life styles remain a matter of choice;
- To contribute to world stability;
- And to protect and improve the nation's environmental quality.

Unfortunately, the report notes, the United States energy system currently relies most on the least plentiful domestic energy sources and least on the most abundant.

Coal, for example, the most abundant domestic fossil fuel, provides less than 20 per cent of the nation's energy while over 75 per cent of the country's energy consumption is based on petroleum and natural gas.

The report dealt with several aspects of the energy problem. It included studies of short-term energy needs, mid-term and long-term requirements and concluded that the problems in energy are "urgent".

ERDA feels that production of domestic oil will begin to drop rapidly in the mid-1980's and the production of domestic natural gas will tumble at the same time.

The East Coast has been plagued with rapidly rising fuel costs and some shortages over the past few winters due to both climate and a dependency on oil for heating but the West Coast has not suffered as much.

However, since much of the heating on the West Coast is done by natural gas, the rise in prices for that resource could drastically increase utility bills if supplies drop off.

Copies of the report are available for public viewing at the ERDA office at 1333 Broadway in Oakland and single copies may be obtained through the Assistant Administrator for Planning and Analysis, ERDA, Washington D.C. 20545.

ABAG wins EPA water study grant

BERKELEY - The Environmental Protection Agency has awarded a $4.3 million grant to the Association of Bay Area Governments to study water quality management in the Bay Area.

The two-year grant, authorized under Section 208 of the Clean Water Act of 1970, is the largest grant awarded in California.

The Livermore-Amador Valley Water Management Agency and the Bay Area had both sought 208 funds for long-range water studies but the EPA apparently believed ABAG was the most qualified to lead the study.

The 208 planning area will include all of Alameda Contra Costa, San Francisco, San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, most of Marin County and the portions of Napa, Sonoma and Solano counties which drain into the Bay Area watershed.

Under the provisions of the 208 grant, ABAG must prepare a detailed work program by Sept. 12. That program must then be submitted to the State Watr Resources Control Board for approval.

A program Review Board, consisting of representatives of the EPA, Regional Water Quality Control Board and BASSA, will also be established.

The two-year study will attempt to determine if urban and agricultural run-off are problems in the Bay Area and what can be done about them, will attempt to improve the quality of population projections and will look at the question of growth pnlicies as they relate to air and water quality problems.

City sets youth trip to Salinas

The Pleasanton Recreation Department is sponsoring an excursion for the Junior Bike Club and all 11-14 year olds to Salinas and Santa Cruz on Sunday, July 20.

The group will leave the West Wind Youth Center at 8 a.m. and make stops along the way to the Salinas carnival, pageant and rodeo. The caravan will stop in Santa Cruz on the way back and try go-carting if time permits.

Fee for the excursion is $2 for members and $3 for non-members, not including go-carting and boardwalk expenses.

Parental permission slips may be picked up at the Pleasanton Recreation Department, 200 Bernal Avenue and must be returned by July 18.

ILWUA honors Dublinite

Dawn Rutter of Dublin was elected president of the Federated Auxiliaries of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, at the organization's biennial convention.

Delegates from 15 auxiliaries in Oregon, Washington, California and British Columbia participated in the five-day convention at Torrance.

Mrs. Rutter had served several terms as first vice-president. She is the wife of John Rutter, a long-time member of ILWU Local 10, San Francisco.

President of V.F.W. Auxiliary No. 9968 in Dublin, Mrs. Rutter is well-known in the Valley for her community activities. She and her husband have been active in scouting and their son was recently promoted to Eagle Scout.

The Rutters have hosted overseas students from Liberia, Japan and France, and Mrs. Rutter corresponds with women in other lands.

In her report to the convention, Mrs. Rutter mentioned these facts and said that the internationalism of the delegates "has made us richer Americans and happier, more creative women, mothers and wives."

Dawn received delegate acclaim for her paper on the convention theme: "International Women's Year — Unity and Understanding." She explained the official United Nations designation of International Women's Year and declared that many of the U.N. goals "run parallel to ILWU programs" which include elimination of racism, colonialism and implementation of U.N. decisions to secure peace and justice.

The shrine is also planning an August 8 Ceremonial and the annual barbeque August 17 from noon to 5 p.m. at the Fremont home of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Painter. Donation for the barbeque will be $3.50 per person.

THE PERFECT HOST

Barossa Valley
Cabernet Sauvignon, 5th

The full body and complex taste of Barossa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon (pronounced Cab-er-nay So-vee-non) will be in pleasant company with a flavorful cheese like the Sharp Cheddar that is featured this week. This smooth red wine, like others, should be served at room temperature. Chilling a red wine has a tendency to blunt the bouquet and retard the flavor.

Barossa Valley Cabernet Sauvignon is a value at $2.49.

Political sad sacks are at it again

What is there about this valley scene that brings out the worst in some people? How can a man or woman live here for five years, ten years or even more, and never find one bright, positive, even optimistic thing to say about their town?

We have grown accustomed to those outside forces which would saddle us with their burden of smog or BART or Bay pollution while leaving us with no promise of benefit from any of those actions. But it never ceases to amaze this valley observer how some people can thrive on their community's shortcomings. They seem to make a cause out of home town divisiveness. Only our enemies understand the rules of regionalism.

There is a state rule which says that local government must fend for itself in the provision of all those "general fund" operations that include safety services, recreation, park development and maintenance etc.

That same state rule provides the municipal team with little or no fiscal help toward those local needs — leaving cities to struggle with tourism, hotel taxes, sales taxes and the levy on private property as virtually their only fiscal sustenance.

We are all aware of the extent that property taxes must underwrite those local services. Most of us would like a little help on that score, before we collapse under the burden. That help is never going to come from tourism, or even from industry — judging by our present pace. That leaves sales tax as the one likely source for a transfusion of new city bucks — the same source that built new civic centers in Concord and San Rafael without a penny of cost to the taxpaying property owner, and provides Walnut Creek with safety services better than two-to-one over the local ratio.

The regional shopping center sought by Pleasanton may not (and probably will not) be the answer to all of Pleasanton's financial woes, let alone the valley's total deficit. But it is a start. It would be a half million dollars or more in net annual tax income retained here, instead of flowing off to places like Walnut Creek and Hayward and San Francisco, where most of our retail purchases are now made.

Using the "redevelopment district" is a big city gimmick that for years has brightened the downtown cores of such places as Oakland and San Francisco, including more stores and entertainment centers to attract those suburban bucks. But when a city the size of Pleasanton decides that it is too good a tax game to pass up, the local doomsdayers cry "Foul!" We wonder where in hell they have been while all those other billion dollar schemes were building the inner cities, at suburbia's expense?

And what was there so good about Livermore's First Street upheaval that cannot now be matched, or even improved upon, by Pleasanton's two-pronged approach? And why is commercial growth so great for Dublin, or Walnut Creek or Hayward, but so terrible for Pleasanton?

There may be other solutions to the valley's fiscal plight than just expanding our commercial base. The point is, we never hear of those "better ideas" ... certainly not from the Pearsons or the Millers or those other political sad sacks who would prefer to proclaim that "smog capital of the world" bunk rather than be caught doing anything constructive or positive for their community.

Letters to the editor

False editorials

Editor, The Times:

Herald & News editorials are increasingly gaining a reputation for intellectual dishonesty and distortion to the point of falsehood among informed observers of local political affairs.

The targets of distorted Herald editorials have a tough time in responding for three reasons: 1) long descriptions of the facts necessary to set the record straight often bore the casual reader; 2) a newspaper always has the last word, and can reply with another distorted editorial to any correction of the record; and 3) it would be a full-time job to correct continual Herald distortions.

Last week, however, such a simple, clear-cut example appeared that it was impossible to resist the temptation to respond.

In their editorial of July 2, 1975, the Herald attempted to blame Livermore for Pleasanton's failure to cooperate with COVA. That editorial contains the statement "Pleasanton folk have watched Livermore refuse to help in the battle against the Kaiser dump and at the same time ask for Pleasanton's help in fighting the New Town plans." The first clause of that sentence is completely false.

Both Livermore's city council and planning commission have vigorously opposed the Kaiser dump since day one. We have independently and at the request of CAGE and Pleasanton sent resolutions and letters to all appropriate official bodies. This record is clear and well-known to all the newspapers, because they have published these very facts in their news columns.

In this circumstance, it is hard to reach any conclusion other than the Herald editorial writer deliberately lied about Livermore's opposition to the Kaiser dump.

This particular revealing example should encourage even the most casual readers of the Herald to ask themselves about the reliability of any statement made in Herald editorials.

Because the Herald also has a reputation for failing to print certain letters to the editor, I have taken the usual precaution of submitting this letter to the Independent and the Times.

Don Miller

B.C. Soccer team

Editor, The Times:

On behalf of the Dunbar Stongs Soccer Club and the accompanying families we would like to express our sincere thanks through the media of your newspaper. The hospitality we received during our stay in Pleasanton June 20-29 was fantastic.

It provided our boys with the opportunity of making many new friends and the opportunity to enjoy excellent soccer. Your Soccer Association is a great credit to the Valley and California.

Our special thanks go to Harry Miller and his wife Georgina for co-ordinating the trip, the families who billited the boys, the coaches and boys of the soccer teams, the Management of the El Rancho Motel who truly made the families feel so welcome and were at all times more than obliging, and the many people who provided transportation and hospitality.

We look forward to hosting the Ballistic Soccer team in 1976 and to extend our hospitality to those involved in the Soccer exchange.

May this be the start of many such cordial Soccer exchanges between our two countries.

Classroom order

Editor, The Times:

A lot has been said about the Fundamental school. If a fundamental school means law, order, teaching of the fundamentals, respect for teachers, adults, no smut on walls, no swearing for teachers or students, a place where other kids are screened so they want to learn then that's where I'd like to send our child.

A number of us are sick to death of the lack of discipline that goes on in the Livermore schools particularly the black-board jungles they call our junior high schools. I'd rather scrub floors than to send anyone of my kids go to at least two out of the three of our junior high schools in our city! It's just that bad.

Call it what you will — it's back lash but you liberals asked for it. You had the control of a newspaper and the control of the board of education and you made a mess of it! Not only do we have good education but in some cases a kid isn't even safe in his school! And you can't blame it on the blacks — there are so few here in town nor can you blame it on busing ... You had the control but didn't do anything.

Sure the fundamental school is going to be like a religious school and some religious groups will take advantage of it and they will try to get their children in so that instead of paying the $50 per month for a private religious schools like we have to do next year for our child — they can get the public schools to provide the type of education they want. And it's free. Well, I say nice work if you can get it.

As far as having a fundamental school to ruin Granada — I'm sure that IS what the conservatives had in mind. I don't believe in the fundamental concept beyond the eighth grade. Anything stricter than Livermore High would make the students rebel. We could do a better job of cleaning Livermore High up, however.

So if handled right, a fundamental school would be a good idea. Working out the important details — how do you choose the candidates — who gets bused and who doesn't? Are certain religious groups going to get more favors because the man who hires the teachers belongs to a particular group! Are certain kinds of students going to be picked because they are used to authority? Where does it end? Also the poll sent out was not a questionnaire but an application. Actually families with large families were favored because each child was polled. Would an effort be made to keep brother and sisters together? ...

Sure it's going to be an elite schools — I'm not sure that it isn't a good idea. I'd like our kid to go to school with other kids who are interested in academics. Why should he have the teachers time wasted with kids fooling around?

As for me — anything they come up with in the way of improving the junior high situation has got to be a step upwards.

AC Transit costs

Editor, The Times:

We want to be sure that you understand that AC Transit is not losing $2.20 on every passenger who rides between Valley points and BART stations at Hayward and San Leandro, as indicated in your story of June 13 — and, as was proclaimed in the headline.

AC Transit does not lose any money on this service, which is operated under contract with BART. And, we don't want our taxpayers to think they are subsidizing bus service for areas outside our district boundaries.

BART reimburses AC Transit fully for costs of operating the service, so the loss comes from BART funds. How they fund the service should be pursued with BART.

Properly, you seem to be in contact with BART on financial figures and routing; and, I'm sure you do understand they are paying for the bus service as an extension to BART rail service. We operate and maintain the buses on a cost basis.

(Mrs.) Virginia Dennison
Public Information Manager

Jobs at the Fair

Editor, The Times:

Many young people of college age were counting on jobs at the Alameda County Fair in order to earn money toward their college expenses. Unfortunately, although fairground recruiters specified that anyone hired had to be seventeen or older, a high percentage of those lucky enough to get jobs at the fair of fifteen and sixteen or under. Recruiters could have prevented hiring of fifteen and sixteen year olds by the simple process of checking drivers licenses. However, they did not employ this expediency because it would have prevented the hiring of the children of fair officials and others involved in the fair. Aren't there child labor laws to prevent hiring of children under sixteen? Whose job is it to enforce these laws?

Hindsight/Foresight

Summer duplication

"Unless you give them something that's attractive, the students who need to be there won't come."

Is it the carrot-on-the-end-of-the-stick philosophy or a realistic approach to getting the students who need remedial work "motivated" into taking summer session classes?

Dr. Bruce Newlin, superintendent of the Amador-Pleasanton School District and author of the initial statement, believes that if the district is going to have a summer academic program the enticements must be present. Presumably they come in the form of sports and arts & crafts classes.

It would be interesting to learn how many students in any summer session....who need remedial help in the basics....are taking said classes. Or a combination of remedial and elective....or just an elective.

Summers sessions in both Livermore and Pleasanton, historically, have had good attendance.

Enrollment figures for the Pleasanton Elementary District summer session show 687 enrolled at Harvest Park, 320 at Pleasanton Elementary and 390 at Alisal. Fourth through eighth graders attend the first two schools and 1-3 the latter. Another approximately 1,300 are in attendance at the Amador summer session.

Though Newlin states that "We don't want to have any class that is exclusively recreational," it is apparent from course descriptions (sent out by the summer session principals) that some are.

Pleasanton has indicated some concern but discussions on the subject, between city recreation and school district leaders, have yet to reach the procedural-change stage. It is likely they never will unless the recreation department becomes miffed to the point of seeking administration-board level exchanges.

The object of this and previous treatises dwells with the seeming repetition of offerings by two public agencies serving the same areas.

In this era when we are forced to stretch our tax monies to the breaking point, it would seem worthwhile to eliminate repetition so that one agency or the other would have full classes instead of two with sparse signups and losing money.

We offer some examples from the Pleasanton school and recreation department summer schedules to illustrate the repetition. Granted, these classes listed are not going to "break" the taxpayer but bear in mind that many more similarities could be listed:

Pleasanton Rec offers both tumbling and gymnastics classes for primary, intermediate and high school age youngsters. The Elementary School District offers the same for fourth through eighth grades; both agencies offer beginning and intermediate guitar; both offer crafts, the high school class including activities such as leathercraft, weaving, carving and jewelry; both offer drama and theatre workshop, backpacking, rock climbing and art classes.

Elementary age youngsters could also have availed themselves of such offerings as needlecraft, advanced basketball, cooking and team sports.....all offered by the school district!

Newlin denies any effort to offer courses primarily for financial gain, prefering to consider all as "motivational."

Appealing your assessed value

Property owners who plan to contest the values placed on their properties by the county assessor can file an appeal beginning July 2, the State Board of Equalization has announced.

The filing period for residents of Alameda County is from July 2 to Sept. 15; in Contra Costa County, July 2 to Aug. 26. Appeals received after the final filing dates cannot be considered.

If a property owner does not receive notice of the assessed value of his property by July 1, or shortly thereafter, he may obtain the information by visiting the assessor's or county auditor's office, where the roll is kept. Usually the assessor's office will supply the figures by telephone or mail if the owner can identify the property accurately, preferably by parcel number.

A property owner can contest the assessor's full value estimate if he thinks it is excessive. Except in the case of land in the "open-space" program, "full value" means the best price a willing and knowledgeable seller could obtain for the property from a willing and knowledgeable buyer. To contest the assessor's full value, the property owner should be prepared with information on the sales price of comparable properties in the neighborhood.

An appellant cannot expect relief merely because taxes generally are high or because the current assessed value is considerably higher than last year's. The current assessed value must be excessive relative to what the property was worth on March 1, 1975.

Forms on which to file appeals may be obtained from the clerk of the county board of supervisors or from the assessor's office.

In the beginning there was Len 's Coffee Shop, and Mom's Cafe, and a lot of other greasy spoons that functioned in strict obedience to this valley's tradition for quantity, if not quality, in catering to the local stomach. It was not that those spots were bad; it is just that we were never conditioned for anything better.

"I eat there because I know the owner, and like the home-town atmosphere." That was the dictum most of us followed. It was enough to keep the fried egg and ravioli spots alive, throughout those difficult valley years.

The people who ran these places were vastly more important than the food they dispensed. Three minutes of conversation with Lena would soon take your mind off of her coffee, which was consistently terrible. Steak and a baked potato from Chef Perry Jones at the Rose Hotel might in fact have been a gourmet treat ... but we knew not, and cared not; the scene was the thing, and the entertainment (Perry battling a customer, or customers battling each other) was worth far more than the price of the plate.

It was from such a mold that Sam DiLaura carved his own idea of "a family restaurant." A few years later, Bob Steffenauer and Bill Kirkland got together to buy the Wagon Wheel, and to include therein a variety of dishes, and chefs, to balance their list of libations.

It is a formula that must have had something going for it, for DiLaura's Restaurant and the Wagon Wheel can look back on two decades or more of service under the same management and much the same menu. It is a record matched by few restaurant people of recent vintage.

You have to understand the rules of the local game, in that bygone era, to comprehend the importance of a place like Sam's. The "room in the back" was indispensable to all food and beverage dispensers of that time ... for a number of reasons which I shall not divulge here. In Sam's case, the reason was always legal, if otherwise questionable.

The Chamber of Commerce, the Lions Club, the BPW ... all of them at some time or other used the room in back of Sam's for their stated gatherings. It was a local tradition. And besides, we had no place else to go.

I can recall my first stint as President of the Pleasanton Chamber of Commerce beginning in that very room. (I had gained the position after the local market manager had suddenly departed town with a large box of useless pari mutuel tickets, and a long cash register tape that failed to make sense. It was a nasty business.)

There was that day we got the college, then lost it again, all in the wink of a governor's eye. They gathered in DiLaura's back room to hear the bad news. The place was jammed. Somebody had left a baby buggy in the corner, with day-old sheets. The odor blended in with that mass of troubled humanity. It's a wonder half of us didn't pass out on the spot.

The passing of history, the important events of our lives, the seeds for a divorce, the brawl that brought it to public view ... all this, and more, transpired in the local beaneries. I wonder how we could have survived without them; I am certain the town is poorer for their loss.

Sometimes the characters who ran the place outshone the establishment itself. The Pleasanton Hotel, in my first acquaintance thereof, was such a blending.

Mickey "Bouquet" Cohn came to us from a colorful San Francisco background, to put it mildly. The State Liquor Board thought so much of him that they suggested Bouquet establish himself somewhere well outside of the City and County of San Francisco ..."go way out into the boondocks somewhere," they ordered. Pleasanton, of course, was a natural.

Now, whatever misguided youth Mr. Cohn might have had in SF, he revealed no evidence of that distress when he took over the Pleasanton Hotel. At least not so's the public or the local cops could notice. Bouquet was a model citizen, and a damned good restaurant proprietor.

The chef he brought from one of his best San Francisco spots was also a man of other talents, as it turned out. Before he got around to building the new kitchen, Bouquet's chef redesigned and refurbished the dining areas, whacking away with his twohanded knife to produce the attractive molding which still dominates that handsome interior.

Two days after he had finished, the chef and Bouquet got into a terrible fight. The chef departed. We never did get to taste his delicious San Francisco dishes. But we sure loved his woodwork.

Bob Steffenauer and Bill Kirkland rarely made any claim to culinary excellence. Unless you are terribly fond of peanuts. But they are smart enough to realize that a good steak is often the first step in selling a long and libatious evening. Steff and Kirk kept a kitchen in the back of the Wagon Wheel, so that the bar could flourish up front. It was a formula that worked for some 20 years.

Now that famous duo is hanging 'em up. Just like Sam and Eileen DiLaura before them, Kirk and Steff have come to the end of the catering trail, at least so far as downtown Pleasanton is concerned.

There was this line in valley folklore (I think) that began. . ."Don't sell the steak, sell the sizzler." We had some who could sizzle with the best of them. Somehow, coffee will never taste the same .

For Wednesday, July 9, 1975

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Domestic pressures will be a bit heavier today than usual. Situations won't be helped if you let outsiders put in their two-cents' worth.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Weigh your words carefully again today. Certain parties in the wings are looking for a reason to take a pot shot at you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your checkbook will have to be treated with respect or it may not tally at day's end. Don't take any flyers.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) It will be a bit difficult to set a course of action today and stick to it. Priorities will be neglected.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It's usual to let others think for you. Today you will. Unfortunately, their suggestions may not be to your benefit.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You still have to be careful in arrangements with friends where money or something of a material nature is at stake. Proceed with caution.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Behave today so that your reputation is protected at all costs. It's best you be idealistic, rather than expedient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. Don't champion an unpopular cause today regardless of how strongly you feel about it. Wait till the odds are more in your favor.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your "markers" may be called in today on obligations to two different parties. Do what you can to clear things up now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to let others pressure you into decisions that are against your better judgment. A firm "No" is better than a weak "Yes."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's not a good day to change proven work routines. An operational change could prove to be the long way around.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You're lucky today, but only within certain bounds. Don't take any foolish risks or chances.

Your Birthday

July 9, 1975

A career opportunity comes your way this year, but it will only be a door-opener. What you make of it will depend upon how diligently you respond and how eell you're prepared.

"What sort of free bid was that?" roared North. "Only 13 high-card points and there you were way up at the three level."

"It turned out to be very costly," replied South. "We had a game, slam and rubber waiting for us and you had to bid seven and throw it all away."

"If you had just passed over East's two hearts, I would have bid three clubs and we would have reached the slam," continued North.

"Right," said South. "We also would have scored everything if you hadn't hung me for bidding three clubs."

The argument may still be going on so we will try to answer it for you, our readers.

If East had not stuck in his two-heart bid, South would merely have rebid to two clubs. When he did bid two hearts South was given a choice. He could pass and maybe never get to show his club suit or he could bid at the three level.

This time the pass would have worked out better, because North overbid to an unsound seven. Year in and year out the bid will be the winning action.

Ask the Jacobys

Question from Maine: I held: ♠ Q 10 6 5 ♥ 3 2 ♦ A K 8 7 ♣ J 9 3.

Our opponents reached four spades with no bidding by either my partner or myself. Should I have doubled?

This is the sort of question that is impossible to answer really well because we don't have enough information. How did the bidding go? Who was on lead?

After some bidding sequences a double is indicated. After others, you should pass if your double may tell declarer how to play and make the contract. We suspect this did happen after our correspondent stuck in a double.

(Do you have a question for the Jacobys? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and writers will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

Livermore alive in tourney

Livermore has advanced to the consolation finals in the Livermore Babe Ruth All-Star Tournament with a 5-2 victory over Castro Valley yesterday at Granada High School's swirling dust bowl of a field.

The 15-year old stars will meet either Oakland or Hayward today in the windup to the five-day tournament.

Yesterday, it was Charlie Bockover's defense, and Darryl Stone's bat that eliminated Castro Valley from further competition.

In the sixth inning, Livermore pitcher John Bachleda loaded the bases for Castro Valley with three consecutive bases-on-balls. C.V. hitter Brad Wellman ripped a pitch deep to left field, but Bockover, moving like a wide receiver, tracked down the smash. His catch preserved Bachleda's victory.

In the first inning for Livermore, Mark Davis reached on an error and Ken Ebert was safe on a fielder's choice. Kevin Gosney scored Davis with a single. Stone followed by blasting Ted Richie's fastball for a three-run homer . Castro Valley, a strong percentage hitting club, was in contention throughout the game. The losers put men on the bases repeatedly, but failed to cash in as Bachleda put on a super relief performance.

John, in his debut as a pitcher in all-star play, came in for starter Jeff Perry in the top of the third inning.

Perry, who worked the first two innings, worked himself into a jam by yielding two runs in the third inning, and left with no outs and a runner at third base.

Coach Tom Muniz then called for the right hander Bachleda who started out shakily, walking two. But he settled down to retire the side with no further damage done.

Such was the case in the fourth inning when Perry drew a free pass and moved to second on a sacrifice. When Richie went into his stretch, Wellman and Wes Howell traded positions at shortstop and second base, hoping to confuse Perry. The base runner wasn't baffled.

During the middle of the game the competition heated up. Threats were exchanged.

Things cooled off after the brief flurry, however, and both pitchers settled down to take command of the game. Spectators were more caught up in the short-fused flareup than were the players.

Livermore worked runners on to the bases in every inning, but failed to push one around.

Dublin Valley's Chuck Cary pitched a masterful one-hitter, but lost to Centerville National Monday, 1-0. Cary struck out 13. Centerville's Brocchini fired a two-hitter with 11 strikeouts to pick up the win.

Hewey the hurler thumps Truckin

An eight-hit pitching performance by Doug Hewey earned Ham Printing a 5-0 win over Truckin in Livermore Slow Pitch Softball.

Hewey allowed just two extra base hits, doubles by Tom Jacques and Dennis Prater, and never allowed a Truckin runner to reach third base.

His teammates pounded out 12 hits, and produced the winning run in the top of the second inning on singles by Bob Johannsen and Reed Baird.

The printers rallied for three runs in the fourth inning on RBI hits by Wayne Rice, James Downing and John Arguello.

The City Employes defeated Ideal Drayage in other action, 8-7. Ideal led, 6-2 after an inning, but the Employes scored once in the fifth inning, and five more times in the seventh for the victory.

Late-game replacement Bob Janoy lashed back-to-back triples for the Employes, including a run-scoring blast in the seventh inning. Adolph Correa, Ray Robustelli and Ray Ansick all singled home runs during the winning rally.

Ideal scored six times in the first inning on the strength of triples by Mark Barbano and Bob Landon, and Dave Lynch's two-run homer. Lynch drove in the final run with a fifth-inning single.

Parker Research center fielder Ernie Campiotti lashed three two-run doubles in a 13-6 rout of the Atom Repairmen.

He finished with six RBI's. Teammate Fred Davis went 2-for-4 with two runs-batted-in.

FAMILY FUN FOR EVERYONE

Depend on us
We're here to help all agriculture of all ages
Most farm families tend to believe that there is no substitute for practical farm experience. And they also believe that a good way to develop such experience is with a personal business venture all one's own.
That is the idea and the ideal behind the Junior Livestock Auctions: to give 4-H and FFA members an opportunity to raise their own meat animals, pay their own expenses, keep their own books—and then, once a year, market those animals in open competition to the highest bidders.
Bank of America is happy to play an active supporting role in this community-wide farm program. We finance many of these junior livestock projects. We also help clerk the auctions and underwrite the bids to guarantee each youngster payment in full for every sale.
You are invited to participate, too. Come to bid on choice meat for your own table. Or come to watch. It is small business. But it is big enterprise. For everyone concerned.
